

Review of the Consumer Price Index, 2022

(Index reference period November 2022 = 100)

Introduction

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) is an important economic statistic designed to measure the relative change in the prices paid by households in Maldives. Globally, the CPI is the most widely used measure of a country's inflation rate. To ensure that the CPI provides the best possible measure of current price changes, statistical agencies need to undertake a review of the CPI on a routine and periodic basis, preferably no more than every five years.

The principal purpose of these reviews is to update the market basket of goods and services covered by the CPI in order to reflect changes in the expenditure patterns of Maldivian households. Over time, expenditure patterns change and it is important that the CPI remains representative. New goods and services emerge. Outlets close and new types of outlets open. All of these changes need to be reflected in the CPI. Finally, updating the CPI provides an opportunity to review and update the methodology used to compile the CPI.

The Maldives Bureau of Statistics (MBS) has completed the latest review of the CPI and updated the market basket to using expenditure data collected from households during the 2019 Household Income and Expenditure Survey (HIES). The index reference period is November 2022. This new (2022) CPI was published in January 2023. The new index has been linked to the old data series to create a continuous time series of data.

This article presents the 2022 CPI and highlights the changes in the weighting pattern and describes the additional improvements implemented

Definition and calculation of the CPI

The simplest way of thinking about the CPI is to imagine a basket of goods and services comprising items representative of those purchased by Maldivian households. Now imagine the basket is purchased each month. As prices change from one month to the next, so too will the total price (or cost) of the basket. The CPI is simply a measure of the changes in the price of this fixed basket as the prices of items in it change.

The CPI basket covers only items purchased for consumption by resident households. Goods and services purchased for business purposes are excluded from household consumption. Furthermore, other non-consumption expenditures such as loan repayments and purchases of shares and other financial assets are excluded.

Geographically, indexes are compiled for Male, Atolls, and the Republic. The CPI for Male' covers the price changes in the capital city while the CPI for the Atolls cover the rest of the country. Prices are collected from Male' and the four main islands, namely Hd. Kulhudhuffushi, GDh. Thinadhoo, Gn. Fuvahmulah and S. Hithadhoo.

Collection of prices for the CPI is carried out by the MBS staff. Price data collection for the majority of the items is done on a monthly basis, distributing all outlets to different weeks of the month.

Why upate the CPI?

No economy remains static, regardless of its socio-economic performance or development level. Products emerge and evolve, or become obsolete. New services replace older ones. Technologies advance, and expenditure patterns change in response to new socio-economic developments and product availability. Changes in the structure of the CPI is are necessary if economic trends and changing expenditure patterns are to be reflected accurately.

The following changes to the CPI will be introduced from January 2023:

- Both the basket of goods and services priced, and the weights given to each item in the basket, has been updated. This has been largely based on data gathered through the 2019 HIES.
- Updated methodology for electricity and water.
- Continued to improve the rent survey.
- The CPI will be re-referenced to November = 100.

New Weights and Basket

During the period between the most recent HIES of 2019 and the previous one conducted in 2016, expenditure patterns changed in response to increasing incomes and the availability of new products. These changes resulted in shifts in the proportion of expenditure on basic commodities such as food, and an increase in the spending on housing (rent) and durable goods such as mobile phones and other amenities.

As households tend to spend more on some items and less on others, weights are used to ensure that the CPI reflects the relative importance of each item in the CPI basket, as a proportion of household expenditure.

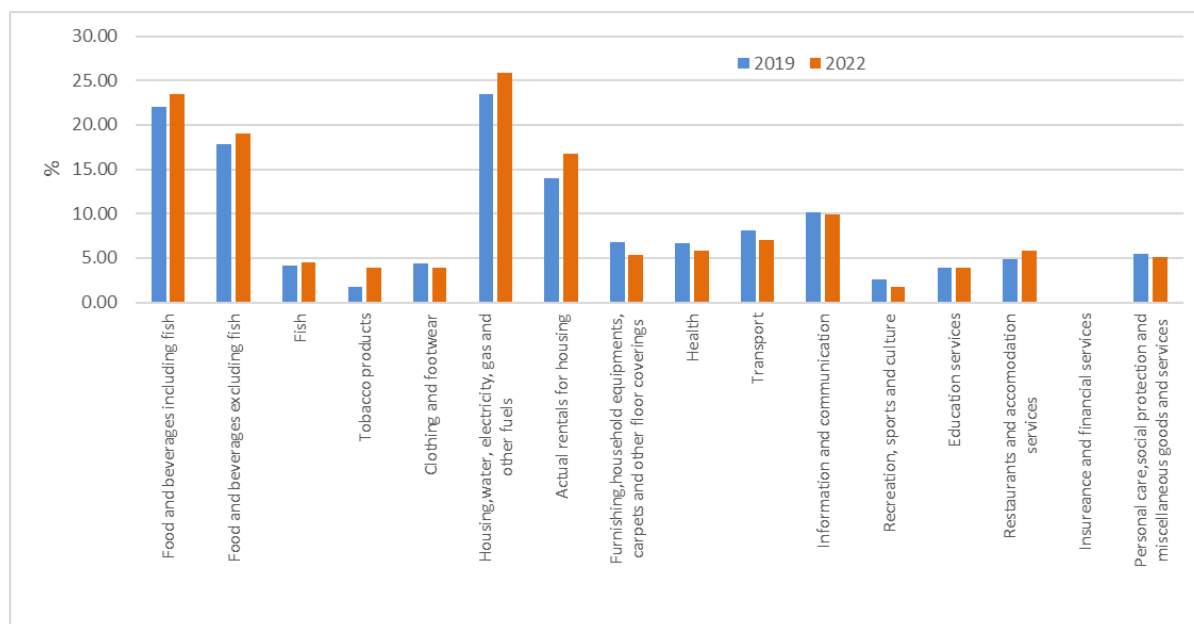

The weighting pattern for the 2022 CPI was derived from the expenditure estimates from the 2019 HIES. The HIES expenditure estimates were classified according to the United Nations Classification of Individual Consumption by Purpose (COICOP). These expenditure estimates were price updated to reflect price levels in Nov 2022, taking into account price changes from 2019 to Nov 2022. The effect of this price updating is simply to preserve the quantities underpinning the 2019 expenditures while delivering contemporary expenditure weights (as it is not meaningful to present weights in terms of relative quantities).

Personal care,social protection and miscellaneous goods and services	5.46	4.79	6.36	5.10	4.35	6.23

The lower weight for food in comparison to housing, water and electricity does not mean that Maldivians are spending less money on food. Rather, it reflects higher income levels, with more money being spent on other goods and services, namely housing, water and electricity, and hotels cafés and restaurants. As a result, the proportion of expenditure on food relative to other goods and services is lower.

Note: CPI relative weights for COICOP groups, sub-groups and expenditure classes for Republic, Male' and Atolls for 2022 is given in appendix 1.

Expanded coverage of items and outlets

The categories for which weights are shown above are still too broad for the direct identification of the specific goods and services that need to be priced. In determining the basket required for pricing, the objective is to choose items that are representative of the broad categories of expenditure shown above. The 2019 HIES provided the main source of information for deciding on the composition of the CPI basket. In order for an item to be included in the basket, a product had to meet a certain percentage within the COICOP category. Furthermore, intensive research was carried out in Male' as well as in the Atolls in preparing product specifications, and outlet selection.

During the review, the CPI basket of goods and services as well as the sample of outlets were reviewed and updated to reflect current consumption patterns. The goods and services included for pricing in the CPI are representative of those commonly purchased by the majority of households. For the 2022 CPI, the number of items selected was expanded to 307, from 298 in the 2019 based CPI. CPI basket 2022 is given in appendix 2.

The outlets covered in the CPI include a wide range of retailers and service providers commonly frequented by customers. The total number of outlets selected for pricing in the 2022 CPI was increased to 641 from 567 Outlets in 2019 based series.

Important new inclusions in the CPI basket are tabets, diesel fuel, house insurance etc. Some of the products which were dropped from the basket are land line bill, hard disk, pen drive, photo copying, cinema ticket, tobacco leaves etc

As was the case in the previous CPI, Male’ and Atoll have their own consumer baskets, which means that the CPI is more responsive to buying patterns at a local level which will result in more prices being collected per product, which will enhance the robustness of the CPI.

Linking and re-referencing the index series

Re-referencing

The index reference period for a price index is that period for which the index numbers are set to equal 100. Re-referencing of the CPI refers to the process of changing the reference base period. This process does not revise the history of past price behavior, it simply re-scales the index numbers to a more contemporary base. The CPI has been re-referenced with a new index reference period of November 2022 = 100.

Linking the index series

Due to the changes to the commodity classification of the new CPI, the first task in linking the new series to the old is to identify those series from the old CPI that correspond as closely as possible to the commodity/regional coverage of series for the new CPI.

In order to link the old index series to the new, it is necessary to calculate a link factor for each series. The link factor for any series is given by the ratio of the index number for the new series to the index number for the old series at the link period, which in this case is November 2022. That is:

The link factor is calculated below for selected commodities/commodity groupings.

Table 4: Indexes for the link period and link factors

Description	Nov 2022		Link factor
	New series	Old series
Food & beverages	100.00	111.44	=(111.44/111.44*100)
Fish	100.00	105.80	=(105.80/105.80*100)
Food & beverages (excl. fish)	100.00	101.80	=(101.80/101.80*100)
Clothing	100.00	100.63	=(100.63/100.63*100)
Overall index	100.00	101.97

It can be seen that the link factor for any series is simply the number that the old index number for the link period needs to be multiplied by to make it equal to the index number for the new series for the link period.

An analysis of the historical series shows that from 1985 to 2022 there is no difference in the inflation rates as expected with the splicing methodology used. The process of re-referencing (which is effectively all that has been done) while changing the index numbers does not change the growth rates (except as a consequence of rounding).

The inflation rate in the Maldives was recorded at 100.49 percent in December 2022. Historically, from 1986 until 2022, the Maldives month on month inflation rate averaged 5.11 percent reaching an all time high of 29.90 percent in December 1994 and a record low of -12.63 percent in December of 1995.

Methodological Improvements

One major improvement introduced in the updated CPI is the methodology for pricing electricity and water. In the old CPI, for both electricity and water, a sample of monthly usages were selected and priced over time. For example, different levels of electricity usage and water consumption were identified. Each month the different usage levels were priced, and these were used to calculate the elementary indexes for electricity and water.

With the new CPI (2022), the unit value approach has been implemented. With the unit value approach, data on total units consumed and total amount billed are used to calculate a unit value (per kWh of electricity or M³ for water). A major advantage of the unit value approach is that it better reflects actual prices paid by households for electricity and water. Additionally, the unit value approach reflects changes in surcharges and fees that are added or removed from bills. For example, when a fuel surcharge is added to electricity bills, the unit value approach captures this change whereas other methods can easily miss the new surcharge. This change reflects the approach recommended in the 2020 Consumer Price Index Manual.

Rent Survey

The MBS has continued to improve the rent survey to include new areas recently developed and to expand the number of rent prices collected each month. Beginning with the 2022 CPI, 20 percent of the sample of rental units will be rotated each year. With the rotation, 20 percent of the sample will be dropped each December and will be replaced with a new sample of rental units. Sample rotation has several advantages. First, it minimizes respondent burden because the sampled unit will remain in the sample for a maximum of five years. Second, rotation ensures that new areas are included in the sample on a timely basis. Sample rotation also ensures a more representative sample of rental contract vintages and new rental units.

Conclusion

The CPI has been updated to reflect more up-to-date weighting pattern and composition of goods and services. It also includes improved methods for pricing electricity and water and continued improvement of the rent survey.

Detailed breakdowns and further information on specific areas of compilation will be available through MBS website, or on request.

(a) Base of each index: Noc 2022=100

The series for the Republic prior to June 2012 was linked to previously published series for Male' and hence the Male' and Republic have the same values prior to June 2012. November 2022 is the base where Index=100 and the base series are calculated and linked to create a continuous time series.

Na-Not available. From August 2019 onwards started using COICOP 2018, which has 13 categories with "Insurance and financial services" as a new category
